

Teaching Nomad

How to Get Your Z-Visa for China

A white toy airplane is positioned on a blue textured surface. The word "PASSPORT" is written in gold, raised letters on the surface. The airplane's tail is pointing towards the word.

PASSPORT

How to Get Your Z-Visa for China

1

Authentication

(2-3 weeks)

Your documents must be authenticated by the Chinese consulate in your home country.

*Teaching Nomad can do this entire process for you***

- You must have a U.S. passport for us to help
- Fill out our order form for a price quote - prices are affected by many factors

2

Send scans to your school

- Send your school scans of every page of each document that you had authenticated
- Specify which consulate you'll use for your visa when you e-mail the scans (you cannot change this later)

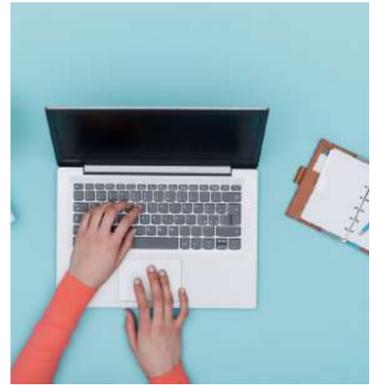

3

Work permit application

(4-6 weeks)

- Your school will use the scans to apply for your work permit

4

E-approval letter

- Your school will send you an e-approval letter that will only be good at the consulate you specified

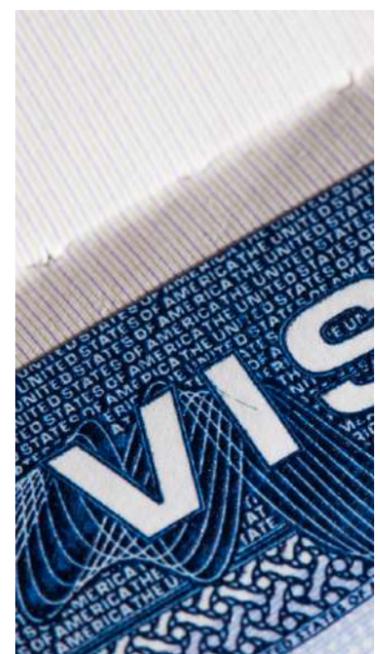

5

Apply for z-visa

(1 week)

- Take your passport, a photo, & the approval letter to the consulate you specified (or use an agent)
- You'll receive a single entry z-visa
- You must enter China within 90 days of this

Learn more